

Management consultants within process transformation

We are looking for consultants with experience in Six Sigma, Lean and operational management

ZÜRICH • We are experiencing a highly increased intake of new projects within process transformation. Therefore, we are looking for competent colleagues, who have experience within Six Sigma, Lean and operational management in service and manufacturing companies.

We are one of Europe's most successful consultancies within the area of process transformation – a position that we have worked hard to obtain and strive to maintain. For our process transformation team, we are looking for profiles to address the problems which may arise in connection with executing radical changes based on the Lean principles in private as well as public companies.

Job content - Change with impact

The job content varies, but includes:

- Providing consultancy services in relation to developing and optimising process organisations in close co-operation with our clients
- Training of tools, methods and behaviours for organisations and programme managers, who take part in improvement transformations
- Assisting in developing the process transformation team and our area of expertise

Our projects are wide-ranging and typically include optimisation of core processes, management tools and systems, performance management solutions and the establishment of a process excellence culture. Our clients are public organisations as well as private organisations within all industries.

We are looking for people who

- Hold at least one relevant master's degree
- As a minimum have 3-5 years of experience from another consultancy
- Have worked with Six Sigma, Lean and optimisation in manufacturing or service companies and are among the very best in Europe within these fields
- Have a strong track record of handling complex challenges in optimisation projects and managing projects in large organisations
- Are fluent in written and spoken German and English

You are passionate about creating results, and you believe in an appreciative approach in the execution of change. You can be normative, but are aware that nothing is black and white. You love diversity and are both analytical and empathic.

Furthermore, your colleagues enjoy working with you, and you have a strong professional network that reflects your ability to develop and maintain business relations. In your future job, you wish to take on both the role of adviser and project manager, and you are interested in working with several aspects of the job as a consultant.

What do we offer?

We offer an attractive performance-related remuneration package as well as excellent development opportunities among highly competent and ambitious colleagues. We work with a high degree of freedom with responsibility and support each other in our efforts to constantly become better at helping our clients create exceptional results. We offer a truly unique culture, a network of helpful colleagues and a company trying to change the business of consultancy to create Change with Impact.

About Implement Consulting Group

At Implement, you will be working with change in a different way. You will get the chance to combine analytical thinking and intuitive understanding – hard and soft knowledge – to unlock the problem which the client is facing. Working closely with the client, you will define project goals and design the process that will help them get there.
