Actuarial Analyst (m/f/d) (Job ID 180005AT)

The Role

In this role, you will work with more experienced colleagues to design and implement solutions to the challenges faced by leading multinational companies and their pension funds. This will involve the analysis and valuation of pension funds for financial reporting, strategic decision-making and risk management purposes. Additionally, you will actively contribute to marketing and research activities.

The Requirements

You are a highly motivated individual who enjoys quantitative modelling, with a relevant educational background, preferably in mathematics, natural or economic science. Ideally you bring along initial work experience within insurance or consulting. Excellent interpersonal and communication skills are second nature to you and you (preferably a native German speaker) are able to communicate fluently in English, with any other languages being an advantage. You enjoy working within a team and would look forward to working with colleagues and clients who are based both within Switzerland and internationally.

The Offer

At Towers Watson you will discover a diverse, team-oriented and flexible working environment with colleagues that take pleasure in providing value-adding advice to clients. We offer a competitive salary benefit package, a bonus scheme, support for further education (e.g. Swiss pension expert certification) and an interesting career within the leading global advisory, broking and solutions company.
